UCDB Reception is held with fun, music and no hazing

For the fifth year, resumption of classes at the Institution is themed and unites freshmen and veterans in a great fraternization

The beginning of classes at the Don Bosco Catholic University was marked by a lot of information, music and fellowship among freshmen, veterans and teaching and administrative staff. The Reception was divided into two stages: on the 12th, only the freshmen participated in the event, which started at Pátio UCDB and concluded with the reception and presentation of teachers and the infrastructure available to new students; on the 13th, the academic community got together in a musical show inspired by the Tomorrowland festival.

The party was animated by the Trinka band. The reception held in the forest were consisted of student, teachers, course coordinators, pro-deans and also had the presence of the Dean, Fr. José Marinoni.

"I never agreed with that kind of hoax, which unfortunately does not respect the dignity of the human being. Now, to have a reception like this, cheerful, respectful, in which the veterans welcome, this is really wonderful. I want to congratulate those who thought, who made this reception, and also congratulate not only the freshmen, but especially the veterans, for understanding what this reception is: joy, respect and mutual knowledge", highlighted the Dean of UCDB.

The moment was of great integration between freshmen and veterans. "I thought there was going to be a prank call and I was even scared. But arriving here, we had this beautiful party, in which we were able to integrate more with our colleagues", said freshman Ingrid Messias. Freshman Júlia Schinaider did not expect this party. "It was really a surprise. It's really cool, because they received the freshmen in a very pleasant way and we felt very welcomed".

A trail for each!

Veteran students from UCDB and graduates of the institution who want to expand their knowledge can now enroll in the UCDB Trails. The procedure must be done over the internet, through the website <https://trilhas.ucdb.br/>. The project, unprecedented in the country, allows interested parties to take a set of courses in different on-campus and distance undergraduate courses and receive a certification.

This procedure can be done already in the graduation, from the second semester of the course, allowing a “customization” of the teaching, according to the areas of interest of the students. An example is a Systems Analysis and Development Technology student who already has the idea of starting a startup. In addition to the regular subjects of his graduation, he can choose a path and take classes in Management and Entrepreneurship, in Administration; Branding, in Design; and Cyberculture, in Publicity and Advertisement, and finish the course as a systems analyst with certification in Entrepreneurship.

In all, there are 33 options of trails divided into six groups: “Communicative Trails”; “Humanistic Trails”; “Entrepreneurship Trails”; “Leader Trails”; “Tomorrow’s Trails” and “Public Policy Trails”. To learn more about the project, watch the video available on the website www.ucdb.br and on UCDB’s social networks.

Taxidermy course is taught to Biological Sciences students

Students from the Biological Sciences course at Dom Bosco Catholic University participated, in February, in a Taxidermy course given by the Military Environmental Police (PMA). The technique, taught to students by Lt. Cleiton Lima, is a method to prevent the decomposition of dead animals and keep them intact, preserving the characteristics of each species so that they can be exposed to the public in spaces such as a museum.

The training was organized by the coordinator of the Biological Sciences course, Ricardo Martins. According to the professor, this type of knowledge is important for academic training: “It is an opportunity for them to see animal anatomy, both bone and musculature, up close. In addition, students are able to understand the relevance of this work to foster care for the environment and make people aware of the impact on the ecosystem when there are no more certain species in nature”.

Agronomy Course promotes 1st Soy Culture Field Day at UCDB School Farm

Agronomy, Zootecnics and Accounting Sciences students at the Dom Bosco Catholic University experienced a Field Day on soy cultivation. The event held by the Agronomy course took place on February 19, at the School Farm of the Catholic, in partnership with the extension laboratory Experiment in Agricultural Sciences and the Agency for Innovation and Entrepreneurship (S-Inova).

“The objective of the event is to demonstrate the field of soybean production under different conditions of fertilization, attack of pests and novelties in phytotechnics”, highlighted the coordinator of the Agronomy course at UCDB, Cleber Jadoski. There, they visited the soy planting carried out in November last year, carried out by maintenance technicians under the instructions of students and guided by professors. Participants received information on forages, the importance of soy in animal feed, varieties of soy, monitoring of diseases and pests, correct disposal of packaging, among other related matters.

Lent

“Lent is characterized by a period of preparation for the great Easter day, where Jesus overcame death! There are 40 days that show the conversion in life through prayer, fasting and charity. These are days to do a ‘detox’ of the soul, in view of the change in posture, which leads to connection and configuration with Jesus Christ”.
